

Bharat Electronics Limited (BEL): A Comprehensive Overview

Welcome! Join us today as we explore BEL, a leading force in India's defense sector. We'll delve into its history, financials, and future outlook.

Introduction to BEL

Founded in 1954

One of India's oldest and largest defense electronics companies

Headquartered in Bengaluru

Known as India's Silicon Valley, fosters innovation and tech talent

Sector : Defense Electronics

Catering to a wide range of military and civilian applications.

Vision

- To be a world-class enterprise in professional electronics, setting global benchmarks for quality and innovation.

Establishers and Promoters

1

Founded by the Government of India

Plays a crucial role in supporting India's national security

2

Promoted by the Ministry of Defence

BEL is a vital component of the Indian defense ecosystem

Share Capital Structure

₹1000 Crores

Authorized Share Capital

Reflecting the company's large-scale operations and growth potential.

243 Million

Equity Shares

243 Million shares at a face value of ₹1 each, traded on major stock exchanges in India.

₹243 Crores

Paid-up Capital

Indicative of the equity invested by shareholders.

Shareholding Bifurcation

- Government of India: ~51%, ensuring strategic control.
- Public Shareholding: ~49%, involving retail and institutional investors.
- Institutional Investors: Includes mutual funds, foreign portfolio investors (FPIs), and insurance companies, adding stability to the stock.

Profit and Loss Analysis

Turnover Analysis

Key Drivers

Expansion in defense electronics and diversified product lines catering to both domestic and international markets.

2019

₹11,000 Crores, driven by increased orders for communication systems and radar technologies.

2020

₹12,000 Crores, with growth spurred by new defense contracts and higher exports.

2021

₹13,000 Crores, bolstered by advancements in electronic warfare systems.

2022

₹14,500 Crores, due to diversification into civilian markets alongside defense.

2023

₹15,000 Crores, reflecting a significant surge in domestic demand for defense electronics.

Current Share Price

₹135 per share

As of [11-12-2024]

Market Cap

₹80,000 Crores

Contemporary Issue: Supply Chain Disruptions

1

Impact

Delays in delivery of defense systems

2

Reason

Dependence on imported components

3

Solution Efforts

Localization and partnerships

Future Outlook

Conclusion

BEL remains a cornerstone in India's defense sector. We are confident in their future, driven by their commitment to innovation and their ability to navigate challenges. We are open to any questions you may have!